Our Policies

As part of our commitment to combating modern slavery, we are implementing a Supplier Code of Conduct which will apply to all our suppliers, and those of their subsidiaries and subcontractors that provide goods and/or services to AEG. This Code shall set out our approach to the obligations imposed by the Modern Slavery Act, and informs our suppliers about the steps and processes AEG expects our suppliers to adopt within their working practices.

We comply with all applicable employment legislation relating to employee terms and conditions, including pay, and we make sure that all direct employees have the appropriate rights to work.

Our Suppliers

As part of our efforts to monitor and reduce the risk of slavery and human trafficking occurring within our supply chains, we have commenced a due diligence programme with a primary focus on the suppliers at AEG.

Our procedures are designed to:

- establish and assess areas of potential risk in our business and supply chains
- monitor potential risk areas in our business and supply chains
- reduce the risk of slavery and human trafficking occurring in our business and supply chains
- provide adequate protection for whistleblowers

The contractual terms and conditions that exist with our suppliers are being updated to include clauses that forbid the use of slavery and human trafficking.

Risk and compliance

AEG will regularly evaluate the nature and extent of its exposure to the risk of modern slavery occurring in its supply chain by maintaining open dialogue with all suppliers

Further actions and sign-off

Following the review of our actions this financial year to prevent slavery or human trafficking from occurring in our business or supply chains, we intend to continue to maintain robust standards to tackle slavery and human trafficking. Currently, however, we do not consider that we operate in a high risk sector at present.
